Negotiate Like a Pro

Do you want to improve your negotiations? The AUTM Transactional Academic Comparables Tracking (TransACT) Database is a powerful comprehensive database of transactional terms and conditions designed to improve your agreements. The database provides more useful information than any other source on transactional structures, terms, scope and other relevant details.

- Use comparable data in negotiations
- Discover alternative pricing or deal structures
- Confirm fair market value for transactions

And the database can also help general counsel or other university administrators who are concerned with fair market value and anti-kickback regulations.

A. General Characteristics

Please answer as many of the questions as you possibly can. The value of the database depends upon you!

Name of Agreement - The name you give this agreement will never be made public or released to other users. The name is only for your internal tracking purposes. However, as a best practice, we advise you to use an agreement name that does not reveal or suggest the actual parties to the agreement.

Your Name - The name of the person entering the agreement data will never be made public or released to other users. The name will be used for 1) internal tracking purposes, for instance to enable a technology transfer office to track which of their own staff members have submitted agreements to the database and 2) so that we can contact you if the agreement review generates questions and you HAVE NOT logged in under your own account. If you did log in under your own account, you may skip Name.
